What is Trichology?

"Tricho" – from the Greek word Thrix (hair) – and "logy" – from the Greek word Logia (study, teaching). Thus, trichology is the science that allows us to identify and treat affections related to the hair system. Biochemistry and the many various research projects on the properties of essential oils and plant extracts play a vital part in this field.

Trichologists are hair health experts. They use a method that allow them to correctly identify hair affections and recommend and offer adapted treatments. Laboratoire Nature offers specialized training in trichology. This training is required to use T  rapo M  dik products.

The hair analysis software TrichoAGcenter[®] T  rapo M  dik Edition has been adapted to Laboratoire Nature's products and treatments. This easy-to-use software tool helps trichologists perform hair analysis, give explanations to customers, and follow up on treatments. We also offer other tools to help you provide customers with the best service possible.
